TASTING NOTES

Colour:	Bright ruby red with garnet reflections.
Aroma:	A complex bouquet with aromas of ripe wild berries, cherry, and pomegranate, enriched by hints of black pepper, sweet tobacco, and a subtle smoky note of volcanic stone.
Taste:	Elegant and harmonious, with silky tannins and a lively acidity that enhances freshness and persistence.
Food:	Tomato-based sauces, grilled meats (particularly pork and lamb), mushroom risotto, and dark-fleshed fishes.

AWARDS & ACCOLADES

2022 ~ 93 Points. "Mount Etna's ancient volcanic soils and high-altitude vineyards above 700 metres produce a Nerello Mascalese with more structure and mineral depth than almost anything made from this variety at lower elevations, and the Ammura Etna Rosso captures that character fully. Perfumed and lifted on the nose with dried hibiscus, iron-tinged volcanic earth, warm spice, and dried lavender, it follows through to a bright, focused palate of tart pomegranate, crushed slate, and leather, finishing long and mineral with silky tannins. Drink it now through 2031 with grilled tuna, duck breast, or aged sheep's milk cheese." - Natalie MacLean, Jun/2026

2022 ~ 92-93 Points. "This 13.5% alcohol wine made from the Nerello Mascalese grape is aged in large Slavonian oak. Meaty, slippery flavors in this easy drinking wine—spices wrapped in red cherries with bright acidity. A wine to be matched with food." - Tom Mullen - Forbes Magazine, Feb/2025

2022 ~ 92 Points. "The 2022 Etna Rosso mixes wild strawberries with lavender and sweet spice to form its inviting bouquet. This is round and fruit-forward with a solid core of ripe cherries and blueberries underscored by crunchy mineral tones. It leaves a youthful inner tension and nuances of tart cranberry that add chewy depth. This finish is long yet fresh." - Eric Guido - Antonio Galloni's Vinous, May/2025

2022 ~ 92 Points. "Clear ruby red with a purple shimmer. Raspberry and cherry, juniper and cold smoke on the nose, invites you to savour it again and again. Juicy and precise on the palate, elegant structure, fully ripe tannins, dancing acidity, salty finish." - Othmar Kiem & Simon Staffler - Falstaff, Oct/2025

2022 ~ 90 Points. "Vivid aromas of raspberries with a touch of lavender. Medium-bodied on the palate, with incisive tannins..." - James Suckling, Sept/2025

2022 ~ 90 Points. "A harmonious red, offering a subtle range of plumped black raspberry and black cherry fruit, plus dried rosemary, anise and cocoa powder accents. This is well-meshed, with chewy tannins and minerally hints of smoke and stone on the finish. Drink now through 2032." - Alison Napjus - Wine Spectator, Oct/2025

2022 ~ 90 Points. "On the nose, tangy, tart, barely ripe red berries glint above a savory backbone of pepper, crushed rocks and shells. On the palate, strawberries and raspberries lead the way riding a current of citrus, until a finish of salt and pepper. Decisive tannins stand up to vibrant acid." - Danielle Callegari - Wine Enthusiast, Dec/2025

2022 ~ 90 Points. "Ammura is the Tommasi Family Estates' Sicily project, focused on the sacred slopes of Europe's most active volcano, Etna. This Rosso is entirely Nerello Mascalese from the northeast slopes at 650m, and from vines averaging 20 years (including 2 plots of ancient vines). The fruit was destemmed and fermented in stainless over 2 weeks before being racked back to stainless for 6 months, followed by 1 year in 20 hL oak. This medium red streams tart cherry, rosemary, fresh cedar, and tobacco along its svelte frame, with sticky, lightly green tannins, and an easy lofted acidity, finishing with subtly browning baking spices. One to enjoy now, with a slight chill, and a charcuterie board including caponata." - Treve Ring - Gismondi on Wine, Jun/2026
