OTHER INFO

Protected from the cold northern winds by the Italian Alps and graced with the Mediterranean influence of Lake Garda, the land is blessed with an exceptional microclimate of unparalleled balance. These factors add richness and ripeness to these extraordinary wines that are also delicate, fresh and aromatic. From handpicked grapes, the wines exhibit distinctly concentrated bouquets that can only be found in the Italian Alps, with a taste profile that is fresh and showcases the characteristics that only this microclimate can provide. It is here that Johann Tolloy owned and operated his Inn, and presented guests with wines that showcase the richness of the Alto Adige/Südtirol.

The story of Johann Tolloy: Johann Tolloy selected and served locally made wine to his customers in Alto Adige/Südtirol in the 18th Century. Many weary travellers seeking comfort frequented his popular Inn along the Adige River, in the town of Salorno. Here, the German and Italian cultures merged to create a hospitable atmosphere. Made with tradition and conviviality in mind, the wines of Tolloy are meant to be savoured and shared, just as the Tolloy family presented them for hundreds of years. The story tells that today's headquarters of Kellerei Salurn (the winery) are found in the same building as the famous Johann Tolloy's Inn.
